FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF EUROPE.

NUMBER SEVENTY-SEVEN.—(BY S. P. WILLIS.)

Trieste.—The national preparations for a dance on board the United States swept away by the breeze—its successful termination.

Trieste.

A ball on board the United States. The guns were run out of the ports; the main and mizen-masts were wound with red and white bunting; the capstan was raised with arms and wreathed with flowers; the wheel was tied with nosegays; the American eagle stood against the mainmast with a star of midshipmen's swords glittering above it; festoons of evergreens were laced through the rigging; the companion-way was arched with hoops of green leaves and roses; the decks were tastefully chalked; the commodore's skylight was piled with cushions and covered with red damask for an ottoman; seats were laid along from one cannonade to the other; and the whole was enclosed with a temporary tent lined throughout with showy flags, and studded all over with bouquets of all the flowers of Italy. Chandeliers made of bayonets, battle lanterns and candles in any quantity were disposed all over the hall. A splendid supper was set out on the gun-deck below, draped in with flags. Our own and the Constellation's boats were to be at the pier at nine o'clock to bring off the ladies; and at noon every thing promised of the best.

First, about four in the afternoon, came up a saucy-looking cloud from the westernmost peak of the Friuli. Then followed from every point towards the north, an extending edge of a broad, solid black sheet which rose with the regularity of a curtain, and began to send down a wind upon us which made us look anxiously to our ball-room bowlines. The midshipmen were all forward, watching it from the fore-castle. The lieutenants were in the gangway, watching it from the ladder. The commodore looked seriously out of the larboard cabin port. It was as grave a ship's company as ever looked out for a ship-wreck.

The country about Trieste is shaped like a bellows, and the city and harbor lie in the nose. They have a wind that comes down through the valley, called the "bora," which several times in a year is strong enough to lift people from their feet. We could see by the clouds of dust on the mountain roads, that it was coming. At six o'clock the shrouds began to creak; the white tops flew from the waves in showers of spray, and the roof of our sea-palace began to shiver in the wind. There was no more hope. We had waited even too long. All hands were called to take down chandeliers, sword-stars and ottomans, and before it was half done, the storm was upon us, the bunting was flying and flapping, the nicely chalked decks were swashed with rain, and strown with leaves of flowers, and the whole structure, the taste and labor of the ship's company for two days, was a watery wreck.

Lieutenant C——, who had the direction of the whole, was the officer of the deck. He sent for his pea-jacket, and leaving him to pace out his watch among the ruins of his imagination, we went below to get early to bed and forget our disappointment in sleep.

The next morning the sun rose without a veil. The "blue Friuli" looked clear and frothy; the south-west wind came over softly from the shore of Italy, and we commenced retrieving our disaster with elastic spirit. Nothing had suffered seriously except the flowers, and boats were despatched ashore for fresh supplies, while the awnings were lifted higher and wider than before, the bright-colored flags replaced, the arms polished and arranged in improved order, and the decks re-chalked with new devices. At six in the evening every thing was swept up, and the ball-room astonished even ourselves. It was the prettiest place for a dance in the world.

The ship has an admirable band of twenty Italians, collected from Naples and other ports, and a fanciful orchestra was raised for them on the larboard side of the mainmast. They struck up a march as the first boatful of ladies stepped upon the deck, and in the course of half an hour, the waltzing commenced with at least two hundred couples, while the ottoman and seats under the hammock-cloths were filled with spectators. The frigate has a lofty poop, and there was room enough upon it for two quadrilles after it had served as a reception room. It was edged with a temporary balustrade, wreathed with flowers and studded with lights, and the cabin beneath (on a level with the main ball-room) was set out with card tables. From the gangway entrance, the scene was like a brilliant theatrical ballet.

An amusing part of it was the sailors' imitation on the forward decks. They had taken the waste shrubbery and evergreens, of which there was a great quantity, and had formed a sort of grove, extending all round. It was arched with festoons of leaves with quantities of fruit tied among them; and over the entrance was suspended a rough picture of a frigate with the inscription "Free trade and sailors' rights." The fore-castle was ornamented with cutlasses and one or two nautical transparencies, with pistols and miniature ships interspersed, and the whole lit up handsomely. The men were dressed in their white duck trousers and blue jackets, and sat round on the guns playing at draughts, or listening to the music, or gazing at the ladies constantly promenading fore and aft, and to me this was one of the most interesting parts of the spectacle. Five hundred weather-beaten and many faces are a fine sight any where.

The dance went gaily on. The reigning belle was an American, but we had lovely women of all nations among our guests. There are several wealthy Jewish families in Trieste, and their dark-eyed daughters, we may say at this distance, are full of the thoughtful loveliness peculiar to the race. Then we had Illyrians and Germans, and Tersichore be our witness—how they danced!

My travelling companion, the count of Friuli, was there; and his little Viennese wife, though she spoke no Christian language, danced as feely as a fairy. Of strangers passing through Trieste, we had several of distinction. Among them was a fascinating Milanese marchioness, a relative of Mazzini's, the novelist, (and as enthusiastic and eloquent a lover of her country as I ever listened to on the subject of oppressed Italy,) and two handsome young men, the counts Neipperg, sons-in-law to Maria Louisa, who amused themselves as if they had seen nothing better in the little Duchy of Parma.

We went below at midnight to supper, and the ladies came up with renewed spirit to the dance. It was a brilliant scene indeed. The officers of both ships, in full uniform, the gentlemen from shore, mostly military, in full dress, the gaiety of the bright-red bunting, laced with white and blue, and studded, wherever they would stand, with flowers, and the really uncommon number of beautiful women, with the foreign features and complexions so rich and captivating to our eyes, produced altogether an effect unsurpassed by any thing I have ever seen even at the court fetes of Europe. The daylight gun fired at the close of a gallopade, and the crowded boats pulled ashore with their lovely freight by the broad light of morning.

NINTH DISTRICT.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATION—FOR CONGRESS,
DANIEL THURBER.

Dr Thurber's friends should be prepared for Saturday next. There will be a warm struggle, notwithstanding the weather is cold. The Anties and the Nationals are busy, and the Democrats must be equally active. The Doctor is a sensible, old fashioned Republican, and deserves the support of all parties—let him at least receive the full strength of his own.

How to deprive the United States Bank of power to injure the public.—The policy of the United States Bank is now fully developed and well understood by intelligent men, and it is in full and vigorous operation. That policy is to distress, to the utmost of its power, the mercantile community, by calling in its debts, and hoarding its wealth in specie. It hopes by these means, to wring from the country, by the power of coercion, a renewal of its charter. The directors of its Branches are the turnspits, who are to roast and torture its debtors—the odious overseers, who are lashing its slaves to new labors for its thrift, and to gratify the malignity of its revenge.—Self interest—self preservation—demands of the public a combined effort, to resist its power and its tyranny. How can this be done? By wresting from it the borrowed wealth on which it operates. Let every man who holds a bill of the Bank, send it home, and draw the specie—for every bill out of the vaults of the Bank, it owes some one the value. The public interest, and the safety of a large class of the mercantile community, depend on crippling the power of the Bank. If its circulation can be driven home, and the cash, the gold and silver it has hoarded, be drawn forth and put in circulation, the notes of other Banks will take their place—the power of the Bank then, will be circumscribed within the limits of its capital—nay, even within much narrower limits,—for if it call in its capital, its friends only will become its victims. The loan of the Branch in this city, exclusive of its line of discount on domestic bills, is but about one million of dollars. If the public will send home the bills of this Branch, they will soon draw out the six hundred thousand dollars which it is hoarding, in specie—and let it call in, if it will, its debts—it will press only its supporters. Therefore, we say, let every citizen, throughout the whole country, who holds a bill of the United States Bank, send it home, draw the specie, and place it in a State Bank. The people can thus prostrate this monster, and cripple its power—and if they do not, it will prostrate them. If the presses of the Union, opposed to the Bank, will put forth their strength, in urging upon the public the execution of this plan, the Bank will soon be brought to its senses, and deprived of its power to do harm.

Outrage.—On Monday evening, the 6th inst. between 8 and 9 o'clock, Maj. T. P. Moore arrived at the public Hotel, in Lexington, Ky. on his way to Washington. He stepped into the bar a moment, by the fire, with his oversocks on and two cloaks—and immediately turned round to go into his own apartments. Leaving the bar, and getting into a dark passage, he was accosted by Samuel M. Brown, (of Louisville, we believe,) to know if "he was the Ex-Minister from Colombia?"—on being answered in the affirmative, he immediately applied some opprobrious epithets to Mr Moore, and at the same time commenced an assault on him. Mr Moore did not know at first who his assailant was, but defended himself as well as he could, attired as he was. Moore drew a pistol, but it was wrested from him, and turned against him by Brown, but it snapped—the latter then struck a blow with the pistol itself, which gave Mr Moore a wound on the forehead. He then, fortunately for himself, got hold of a knife through all his clothes and inflicted one or two slight wounds on Brown, and would have punished him most severely for his rashness but for the interference of the bystanders.—The full particulars of this disgraceful affair will be given hereafter.

The Columbus (Ohio) Monitor says the Democratic State Convention which lately convened in that place, was numerous, imposing, and brilliant. So large a body of delegates of any description, probably never met in Ohio, and one spirit on the leading measures of national policy animated the whole.

Great excitement exists in the town of Dunbarton, (N. H.) in consequence of the disclosures of a little girl, whose father left that place for Concord, some months since, and was never seen afterwards. The girl, who is about eight years old, says he was murdered by her grandfather, whose name is Hemphill, and her mother, when he returned from Concord—he being a son-in-law of Hemphill's, and residing in the same house. He was knocked down by the old man, and his throat was cut. The body was dragged to an old cellar near the house, which was soon after filled up. The citizens were engaged in searching for the body.

The pupils of the Pennsylvania Institute for the Institution of the Blind, accompanied by their teacher, Mr Friedlander, have paid a visit to Harrisburg, and been examined in the Chamber of the House of Representatives, in the presence of the Governor, Heads of Departments, and the members of both branches of the Legislature, in the various branches of education in which they have received instruction.

Seduction.—Burrill Betts has recovered ten thousand dollars from Oliver Coles, in the Superior Court in New York, for the seduction of his daughter.

POLICE COURT.

John Kenny and Michael Johnson were taken into custody by the watch for fighting, on Wednesday evening. The fighting was nothing uncommon, but the weapons with which they fought—considering the honored stock from which they sprung—was most remarkable. They are natives of a country celebrated for the honorable courtesy of their personal contests, and for their religious respect for the laws of the ring. We believe it is their historian Mavor, who has demonstrated, at least to his own satisfaction, that the Milesians are the descendants of a colony from a classic region, and his opinion is strongly sustained by the similarity between their regulations for personal conflicts, and those of the ancient Trojans; for instance, who, that has had the refined pleasure of witnessing an Hibernian battle, and cries of "a ring! a ring!" and the manoeuvres of the combatants, cannot trace its origin back to antiquity, and recognize its prototype in the match between Dares and Entellus—

"Then haughty Dares in the list appears,
Stalking he strides, his head erect he bears,
His brawny back, and ample breast he shows;
His lifted arms around his head he throws,
And deals in whistling air, his empty blows.
His match is sought."

—Entellus for the strife prepares;
Striped of his quilted coat, his body bares;
Composed of mighty bones, and brawn he stands,
A goodly towering object on the sands. * *
Both on the tiptoe stand, at full extent,
Their arms aloft, their bodies inly bent;
Their heads from aiming blows they bear afar,
With clashing gauntlets then provoke the war.

—Around
Their hollow sides the rattling thumps resound,
A storm of strokes, well meant, with fury flies,
And ears about their temples, ears, and eyes—
Nor allows error; for oft the gauntlet draws
A sweeping stroke across the crackling jaws."

So fought the antique bruisers, but how fought our modern heroes? Bones of the immortal Donnelly! burst not your cerements, when ye hear that your degenerate countrymen, corrupted undoubtedly by foreign travel, fought with their teeth—yea, their murrhine-grinders (reversing the text of scripture) were converted into instruments of war; and instead of lacerating their bare bodies, mangled each other's members—whereby Kenney lost an ear, and Johnson a thumb and finger. For this breach of the leges belli, they were sent up to the Municipal Court, for trial.

Andrew Dunlap, Esq. has been speaking for three days in his argument upon Kneeland's prosecution for blasphemy, before Judge Thatcher, of the Municipal Court, and concluded last evening. This effort of the learned gentleman is said to be one of the most ingenious, able and eloquent displays of legal oratory, ever listened to in our Courts.

The weather was so cold yesterday and the day before, that it makes us tremble to mention it—mercury has been rubbing against zero for the last forty-eight hours, and was only two degrees above it when we last looked at the thermometer. Several people declined closing their eyes last night, in consequence of the cold, under the apprehension that they might be unable to open them this morning.

Tremont Theatre.—We solicit the attention of the dramatic community to the bill of entertainments as announced for this evening at the Tremont. Sheridan's comedy of the School for Scandal, is to be played, the principal characters to be sustained by the select talent of the company. This notice, we trust, will be sufficient to attract the attention of the play-goers, and draw the elite to witness its performances. W.

Short vs. Long.—Says Long to Short, "how are ye, Top?" "Top," repeated Short, "I had rather be as small as a Top, than long enough to require six hours to get asleep all over." "You had, ha? Well, I had rather be ten hours getting to sleep, than so short as to be obliged to mount a cabbage-leaf to hiccup."

The following curious advertisement appears in the Portland Courier:—

For sale, or to give away.—A good cow, about five years old, that sucks all her own milk, thereby saving the milk-maid a great deal of trouble. She will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon, and hay enough thrown in to carry her through the winter.

The editor of the Nashville Banner hates the word "steamer," and has vetoed the use of it in his columns.

"Let population thrive."—The wife of Capt. G. W. Jewell, of Johnston, N. Y.—a woman only four feet high—has recently presented her husband with three bright little jewels, as pledges of her affection.

The Union Times berates a political opponent for keeping "mosey-sugar for sale."—The word is not in our dictionary.

Some of the Philadelphia papers state that a hoax has been played upon the people of that city, by a report that Ex-Lt. Randolph had shot the President. A delicate hint to a desperado, in the "some Brutus" strain.

The Atlas and Constellation says the Morning Post is one of the best papers in the world. We never heard any one deny the fact.

The Editor of the Liverpool Mercury lately announced his marriage to "a pretty girl who did not like to see her name in print." It turns out that he has purchased another handsome mare, his first one having died in the process of learning to live on "ink soup, and buttered newspapers."

Marshpee Indians.—The Marshpee Deputation will address the citizens of Boston, this evening, in the Representative Hall, at 7 o'clock, upon the subject of their late difficulty, and present wants.

Mr William Torrey, of Dover, was killed in Dedham on Friday last, by falling under the wheel of a loaded wagon, which passed over and crushed his head, causing instant death.

Keene, the vocalist, and a rich one he is too, is singing in Washington.

The Legislature of Virginia have not yet agreed upon their resolutions concerning the removal of the deposits. A series of them have, however, been adopted separately by the House, by a moderate majority, but before the final question was taken, the indefinite postponement of the whole subject was moved, and the House adjourned rather than vote upon the motion. The two following are the most important of the resolutions referred to:

Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives be requested, to adopt prompt and efficient measures to remedy the evils occasioned by the late unauthorized assumption of power by the President over the public moneys of the U. States.

Resolved, That the General Assembly of Virginia cannot sanction the power which has been claimed by Congress to establish a United States Bank, because in the opinion of this General Assembly, that power is not given to Congress by the Constitution of the United States, as has been frequently and solemnly declared by the General Assembly of Virginia.

The second resolution, emphatic as it may seem, the Bank will not object to, if it were the inevitable accompaniment of the first and far more important one; since if the deposits are restored, such constitutional scruples will be quite inadequate to prevent the renewal of its charter.—N. Y. Stand.

Steam Boat Mail.—New York papers of Wednesday were received last evening, but they brought no Congress news, owing to the failure of the Southern Mail. The Journal of Commerce contains the following from the Richmond Whig—the Whig appears to be quite unhappy:

"Mr Gilmer yesterday moved to re-commit the resolutions to the Select Committee with the avowed purpose of severing the Deposits and the Bank, so unnecessarily connected. A protracted, warm and even violent discussion ensued, when the motion to re-commit, at half past three o'clock, was negatived, ayes 65, noes 66."

The Van Burenites have thus triumphed in their policy, and a mere handful have succeeded in moulding the action of the majority to suit their own views. The country we presume, will be astonished at many votes."

Ohio Great State Convention.—The Convention to nominate a candidate for the Chief Magistracy of the State, and delegates to attend a National Convention, to select a Democratic candidate for the Chief Magistracy of the Union, met at Columbus. When we receive them we will lay the proceedings before our readers.

The Daily Advertiser furnishes the following brief account of its organization and result.—Pennsylvanian.

Ohio State Convention.—The Democratic Convention met in this place on Wednesday last, the glorious eighth, and was called to order by the Hon. William Rayen. The Convention was then organized by nominating the Hon. William Kennon, President, Isaac Humphries, Samuel H. Goodin, Col. Joseph Barker and Gen. George House, Vice Presidents, James Allen, J. Slake, and Charles M. Aten, Secretaries.

The number of delegates in attendance is 227. We are unable to give the proceedings so far, and we believe they will be more acceptable if concluded.

Gen. Robert Lucas was nominated for reelection as the candidate of the Democratic party for the office of Governor—the proceedings of which nomination will appear in its proper order.

The Convention have nominated Martin Van Buren for President, by a unanimous vote; 21 delegates have also been appointed to attend the National Convention with instructions to support, as their first choice, the individual above named, and with power to exercise, as circumstances may induce, their own judgment, in relation to the nomination of a Vice President, keeping in view, however, that each, and all of the individuals who may receive their support, shall be of that portion of the Democratic family termed "Jeffersonian."

Honesty.—It is stated and believed that a distinguished member of Congress from Mass. has written to certain of his friends, connected with several local Banks—advising a curtailment of their discounts. This is the way the Bank is using the influence of opposition members in Congress, to oppress the community.—Worcester Rep.

Laborers.—The statements that have appeared in several papers lately, of mechanics being discharged for want of employment, are incorrect. There is not any more want of employment than is usual at this time of year. We have been assured by some of the operatives, that the discharge of hands has been owing to attempts on the part of their employers to reduce their wages.—Pennsylvanian.

The prisoners in the New Castle (Delaware) jail, attempted to make their escape on Tuesday last. The noise made by them, aroused the Jailor, who succeeded by the assistance of a number of his friends, in preventing the accomplishment of their object, which they had nearly effected.

Anonymous—but good.—A lady having the misfortune to have her husband hang himself on an apple tree, the wife of a neighbor immediately came to beg a branch of that tree, to have it grafted into one in her own orchard; "for who knows," said she, "but it may bear the same kind of fruit."

What is that dog barking at? asked a fop whose boots were more polished than his ideas.

Why, replied Figaro, because he sees another puppy in your boots!—N. Y. Atlas.

A boy was lately asked by the catechist of the school, "who first bit the apple," to which he replied, "I don't know—but guess 'twas our Bets, for she eats green apples like the devil."

An Anti-Duelling Association has been established at Savannah, Georgia.

"A dozen of champagne," says the Savannah Republican, "that the Georgian beats Col. Haskett, in his contemplated pedestrian match."

Small Pox.—Another case of this disorder has been discovered and duly reported in the city, and prompt measures adopted by the authorities to prevent hazard to the vicinage.—Merc. Jour.

Paganini it is said, has left England with upwards of one hundred thousand dollars, gained by his extraordinary performances.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Thursday, Jan. 23.—In the Senate, no business of importance was transacted.

In the House, the order of Mr Phillips, of Sturbridge, in relation to Banks was taken up, and an amendment was offered by Mr Loring of Hingham, upon which the original was withdrawn, and the amendment (similar in substance) was adopted.

Foreign Miscellany.

Theatrical Chit Chat.—Power, the comedian, writes thus cheerfully from America—"My dear —, you will be glad to hear that I am doing right well in this land of liberty; that I like the country, and like the people; and see nothing in themselves, or in their customs, which a man may not very readily abide by; whilst there is on every hand, much to admire, and much to wonder at. I did consider that I had made myself tolerably well acquainted with the state of the country and its chief cities; but, by the Lord, they go beyond my imaginations, as they distance the slow progress of statistical report. Every thing here is movement, on sea and on land, on mountains and in valley. The survey of the engineer and the axe or shovel of the operative go hand in hand, or rather wing to wing, for both seem to move by volition, to judge their works and the time employed in their completion. A line of railroads is now in course of projection (and completion, indeed, in part), which will connect every state in the land, from Maine to the Mississippi, and enable a man to rush from Boston to New Orleans in three or four days; whilst rivers are to be drawn together that have been running asunder since the creation; and mountains rent apart that have grown from molehills in company. * * * The folks here are fond of me; and ridiculous as it may sound, I have had brought to me, whilst writing this scrawl, a veritable deputation, most numerous signed, from the inhabitants of Pittsburgh, on the Ohio, requesting me to pay them a visit, and guaranteeing me, on the part of Mr. Wemyss, the manager, whatever terms I may think necessary to remunerate me. I have acted in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston, where I concluded a twelve nights' engagement on the 17th, and re-open in New York on the 20th (September), then to Philadelphia, then to Baltimore, then to Washington, then to the North again, to this place (Boston). The Kembles continue attractive."—Eng. paper.

Superstitions of the Swiss.—If a huntsman, on going out in the morning, sees a fox cross his path, or meets an old woman or friar, he immediately returns home again; as he is persuaded that, in the first instance, he will meet with no game, and in the other, that he will shoot a man hidden in the leaves, or do some other irreparable mischief. The stagnation of the blood, known by the name of nightmare, is called by them Tokeli. This Tokeli is represented as a little gnome, all covered with fine grey hairs, but of an elegant figure, who lays himself on the chest of sleeping men or women, and embraces them nearly to suffocation. A person who has been thus embraced, is in expectation of soon finding a treasure, as an indemnification from the Tokeli, for the fear and agitation he had caused.

The following lamentable scene occurred a few days ago at the police-office at Moulins:—A woman having been ill-treated by her husband, summoned him before a magistrate, when a violent altercation ensued, and the wife became so enraged that she denounced her husband as the perpetrator of a murder committed in the year 1815, on the high road, near Chalons. Upon this the man, who has been long established at Moulins as a porter, and who was in great repute as worthy of trust, was immediately committed to prison, and the woman, who had been urged by her passion to divulge a crime of which she alone was cognizant, endeavored to retract her declaration, and finding that unavailing, fainted in the office.—French paper.

"I cannot conceive," said one English nobleman to another, "how it is that you manage. I am convinced you are not of a temper to spend more than your income; and yet, though your estate is less than mine, I could not afford to live at the rate you do." "My Lord," said the other, "I have a place." "A place! you amaze me. I never heard of it till now. Pray what place?" "I am my own steward."

The Ladies are Liars.—Bitter—but none the less true for that, if a lady must be credited. Mrs Opie says that all who wear "imitation" ornaments are virtually telling untruths, by imposing on the spectator, mock jewels for real ones.

A young Frenchman, son of a merchant in Paris, has lately published the memoirs of his life, which begin in the following curious manner: "I am the son of Pierre Bertrand & Co."

Galignani's Messenger, in an article speaking of the perfection to which the manufacture of carpeting has been brought in France, states, that at the warehouse of M. de Salandrouse, in Paris, there are carpets valued at fifty thousand francs, while at the same time there are others marked as low as 100 francs.
